

The Centre for Jewish Studies presents

Jewish Literature Beyond Borders

Thursday, October 18, 2012, 9:00am – 6:00pm
Hart House Debates Room, 7 Hart House Circle

Presenters:

Dror Abend-David (Florida): “‘Scorned my Nation’: The Silent Version”

Marc Caplan (Johns Hopkins): “Baroque Echoes and Surrealist Genealogies: Reb Nakhman, E.T.A. Hoffmann, and the Yiddish Symbolism of Der Nister”

Rebecca Margolis (Ottawa): “Yiddish Montreal: Transitions from Minor to Major Centre”

Shachar Pinsker (Michigan): “‘The Language that Was Lost on the Roads’: Discovering Hebrew through Yiddish in Aharon Appelfeld’s Fiction”

Ato Quayson (Toronto): “Postcolonialism and the Diasporic Imaginary”

Na’ama Rokem (Chicago): “The Earthly Effect: Erich Auerbach and Leah Goldberg on Dante and Comparative Literature”

Rachel Seelig (Toronto): “Unsettling the Land: Ludwig Strauss’s Journey from German Romanticism to Neoclassical Hebrew”

Anna Shternshis (Toronto): “From Gulag to Ghetto: The Yiddish Poetry of Moyshe Teyf, 1904-1966”

Deborah Starr (Cornell): “Traces of Arabic as a Jewish Language”

Keynote Address

Dr. Max and Gianna Glassman Israel-Exchange Scholar Lecture

Dan Miron (Hebrew University)

“Centres and Peripheries in Current Jewish Literary Studies”

Schedule Online: <http://www.cjs.utoronto.ca/jewishliteraturebeyondborders>

For more information, call 416-978-1624 • e-mail cjs.toronto@utoronto.ca

All events are free and open to the public. No registration required.

Hosted by the Centre for Jewish Studies with the support of:
The Posen Foundation, Centre for Diaspora and Transnational Studies, Department of Germanic Languages and Literatures, and Department of Slavic Languages and Literatures.

Organized by Rachel Seelig, Ray D. Wolfe Post-Doctoral Fellow

Centre for Jewish Studies
UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

מרכז למדעי היהדות